SBS Group Joint Induction Ceremony for FY2026 Held

On April 1, 2026, SBS Group (President: Masahiko Kamata, Head Office: Shinjuku-ku, Tokyo) held a joint induction ceremony. The following is a summary of Group President Masahiko Kamata's message to 185 new employees.

SBS Group has spent 39 years building its business on the belief that logistics is an essential industry for society. What began with a single truck has grown into a corporate group with annual revenue of approximately 500 billion yen. This growth has been driven by setting ambitious goals, valuing our people, and embracing continuous challenge. This year, we announced our mid-term plan targeting 700 billion yen in revenue by 2030, and we will continue striving toward our longer-term goal of 1 trillion yen.

President Kamata giving a speech

What I want to tell you today is the importance of clearly envisioning your dreams and expressing them in words. When you take responsibility for the words you set for yourself, you unlock greater potential. Define how you want to live and what you want to achieve, and keep challenging yourselves. Having a dream—and speaking and acting on it—is the engine of personal growth.

To grow as professionals, strong character and communication skills are essential. By reading, meeting diverse people, and staying curious about the world, you develop the ability to inspire others. The future will not be shaped by those who merely complete given tasks, but by “transformative talent” who pursue their dreams, identify issues independently, and create new value beyond precedent. SBS Group is a place where people connect across organizational boundaries and grow together. We encourage you to build many relationships and take on new challenges with a venture spirit.

The logistics industry will undergo major change with advances in AI, robotics, and humanoid technologies. Yet the fundamental value of logistics will remain constant. SBS Group will lead these changes and continue expanding both in Japan and abroad. Under the message “For Your Dreams.” we will work with you to shape a new future while supporting your personal aspirations.
